

ABSTRACT

A photographing system for displaying a result of a game is arranged to take a photograph of at least a player of a game machine and the player playing a game with the game machine in one frame together with the result of the game. A result of the game desired by the player is displayed on a display apparatus as well as a photograph is taken together with the display apparatus on which the result of the game is displayed or by directly transmitting the result of the game output from the display apparatus to a recording section of a photographing apparatus. The result of the game is photographed in the same frame in which the player is contained.